

The Commission for Local Administration in England

The Local Government Ombudsman's
Annual Letter
North Lincolnshire Council for the year ended
31 March 2007

The Local Government Ombudsman (LGO) investigates complaints by members of the public who consider that they have been caused injustice through administrative fault by local authorities and certain other bodies. The LGO also uses the findings from investigation work to help authorities provide better public services through initiatives such as special reports, training and annual letters.

Annual Letter 2006/07 - Introduction

This annual letter provides a summary of the complaints we have received about your authority. Where possible, we comment on the authority's performance and complaint-handling arrangements to assist with your service improvement.

I hope that the letter will be a useful addition to other information your authority holds on how people experience or perceive your services.

Two attachments form an integral part of this letter: statistical data covering a three year period and a note to help the interpretation of the statistics.

As you are a local Social Services authority I want to take this opportunity to draw your attention to an issue of significant public interest. In the last two years I have issued reports following complaints from people living in Blackpool, Liverpool and Sheffield about failings in home care services provided under contract.

In each case a vulnerable person was placed at significant risk as a result of carers failing to visit, calling late and failing to provide the specified care. Tragically, in one case the actions of a carer resulted in a death. Complaints had been made to all three Councils but no effective action had been taken. Although the services were provided under contract, it seems clear that similar problems could occur even if the carers are directly employed. I urge you to ensure that senior staff responsible for care services to adults are aware of the issues raised by these reports (which can be found on our web-site) and consider whether action needs to be taken by your Council. The 2006 report of the Commission for Social Care Inspection 'Time to Care? An Overview of Home Care Services for Older People in England' provides very useful contextual information.

Complaints received

Volume

In the twelve months ending 31 March 2007, I received 43 complaints about your Council. This is marginally lower than the 46 received the year below and the second consecutive fall. No conclusion should be drawn from this statistic.

Character

As you can see from this chart complaints were spread across all areas of your Council. Housing and planning & building control complaints between them accounted for over half of all the complaints I received.

The number of complaints about housing issues was one fewer than the previous year. The Council is that it transferred its housing stock in February 2007. This was too late in the year to have a significant impact on complaint numbers but I would expect to see a significant fall next year as I do not have jurisdiction over complaints about registered Social Landlords.

In 2005/6 planning complaints accounted for 13% of the total. This was well below the national average of 23%. This past year I received 14 complaints about planning; 33% of the total and higher than the national average of 23.6%.

I appreciate the actual numbers are low, but the Council may wish to reflect on the changes in light of information it has from its own complaints handling. The Council can draw some comfort from the fact that my investigations did not reveal any underlying systemic failures in the way planning matters are dealt with.

Decisions on complaints

Reports and local settlements

A 'local settlement' is a complaint that is resolved by the Council taking, or agreeing to take, action which we consider is a satisfactory response to the complaint so that the investigation can be discontinued. In 2006/07 27.7% of complaints dealt with by the three Local Government Ombudsmen (excluding premature and those outside jurisdiction) were resolved by local settlement. When we complete an investigation we must issue a report.

Decisions

Over the 12 months, I determined 42 complaints. This figure differs slightly from the number of complaints received because of work in hand at the start and finish of the year.

Of the 42 decisions I took: three complaints were outside my jurisdiction, six I exercised discretion not to investigate, in eight I found no evidence of maladministration and 15 were 'premature' (in our view the Council had not been given adequate opportunity to investigate and resolve them for itself, so were returned to the Council to consider through its internal complaint procedure).

The remaining 10 decisions were local settlements. The settlements agreed were across a range of service areas and in relation to a variety of issues. No general themes or concerns arose from them about the Council's services.

Other findings

As you are aware, we ask for comprehensive responses to our enquiries within 28 days. Your Council responded in an average 35.9 days. Generally enquiries about planning complaints took the longest time to respond to – an average of 38.6 days.

Your Council's complaints procedure and handling of complaints

I have seen nothing over the past twelve months that gives me cause for concern about the way in which the Council handles complaints. The information it publishes on how to make complaints is very good and I am pleased to see your web-site contains a direct link to the LGO web-site.

Training in complaint handling

Part of our role is to provide advice and guidance about good administrative practice. We offer training courses for all levels of local authority staff in complaints handling and investigation. The feedback from councils that have taken up the training is very positive.

The range of courses is expanding in response to demand. In addition to the generic Good Complaint Handling (identifying and processing complaints) and Effective Complaint Handling (investigation and resolution), we now offer these courses specifically for social services staff and have also successfully piloted a course on reviewing complaints for social services review panel members. We can run open courses for groups of staff from different smaller authorities and also customise courses to meet your Council's specific requirements.

All courses are presented by an experienced investigator so participants benefit from their knowledge and expertise of complaint handling.

I have enclosed some information on the full range of courses available together with contact details for enquiries and any further bookings.

Liaison with the Local Government Ombudsman

Notwithstanding the response times, liaison between our two organizations works well. Your staff are helpful in the way they deal with our enquiries and in the responses they send. I am particularly encouraged by the openness and willingness of your Council to discuss and agree settlements when shortcomings are identified. This is very helpful to us and demonstrates the Council's commitment to effective complaint handling.

LGO developments

You may be interested in the development of our initiative to improve the first contact that people have with us. A new Access and Advice Service will provide a gateway to our services for all complainants and enquirers. It will encourage telephone contact but will also deal with email, text and letter correspondence. We will let you have further details about how it will operate and the expected timescales and we will discuss with you the implications for your Council.

I hope you have received our latest special report about telecommunication masts. It draws on our experience of dealing with complaints about planning applications for masts which can be highly controversial. We recommend simple measures that councils can adopt to minimise the chances of maladministration occurring.

In July we will be publishing a special report about the difficulties that can be encountered with complaints when local authorities deliver services or discharge their functions through partnerships. Local partnerships and citizen redress provides advice and guidance on how these problems can be overcome by good governance arrangements that include an effective complaints protocol.

Conclusions and general observations

I welcome this opportunity to comment on our experience of complaints about the Council over the past year. I hope that you find the information and assessment provided useful when seeking improvements to your Council's services.
