Dear Mr Najsarek

Annual Review letter 2019

I write to you with our annual summary of statistics on the complaints made to the Local Government and Social Care Ombudsman about your authority for the year ending 31 March 2019. The enclosed tables present the number of complaints and enquiries received about your authority, the decisions we made, and your authority's compliance with recommendations during the period. I hope this information will prove helpful in assessing your authority's performance in handling complaints.

Complaint statistics

As ever, I would stress that the number of complaints, taken alone, is not necessarily a reliable indicator of an authority's performance. The volume of complaints should be considered alongside the uphold rate (how often we found fault when we investigated a complaint), and alongside statistics that indicate your authority's willingness to accept fault and put things right when they go wrong. We also provide a figure for the number of cases where your authority provided a satisfactory remedy before the complaint reached us, and new statistics about your authority's compliance with recommendations we have made; both of which offer a more comprehensive and insightful view of your authority's approach to complaint handling.

The new statistics on compliance are the result of a series of changes we have made to how we make and monitor our recommendations to remedy the fault we find. Our recommendations are specific and often include a time-frame for completion, allowing us to follow up with authorities and seek evidence that recommendations have been implemented. These changes mean we can provide these new statistics about your authority's compliance with our recommendations.

I want to emphasise the statistics in this letter reflect the data we hold and may not necessarily align with the data your authority holds. For example, our numbers include enquiries from people we signpost back to your authority, some of whom may never contact you.

In line with usual practice, we are publishing our annual data for all authorities on our website, alongside our annual review of local government complaints. For the first time, this includes data on authorities' compliance with our recommendations. This collated data further aids the scrutiny of local services and we encourage you to share learning from the report, which highlights key cases we have investigated during the year.

We issued two public reports about your Council this year. The first related to the Council's failure to provide suitable temporary accommodation to a family and delay in dealing with their homelessness application. We asked the Council to make a payment to the family, review the resources it needs in its homelessness and temporary accommodation departments, and identify the actions needed to ensure a sufficient supply of suitable accommodation for homeless people. The Council was also asked to write to anybody it had placed in accommodation it knew to be unsuitable and advise of the right to complain. The Council identified 41 households who had been placed in unsuitable accommodation and wrote to all, as requested. Given the actions taken, I was able to confirm I was satisfied with the Council's response to this report.

In the second public report, the Council failed to reassess a woman's social care needs and provide appropriate support when her circumstances changed. It also failed to consider contingency arrangements and plans given the fluctuating nature of her conditions and needs. The Council agreed arrangements to get the complainant's child to school but then failed to provide a budget for this, which resulted in a significant debt being built up. The recommendations made to remedy the injustice caused included a payment to settle the debt resulting from the transport to school issues; an apology to the complainant; a payment for the distress, time and trouble and uncertainty caused, and a review of arrangements to ensure collaborative working between Adults and Children's Social Care Services.

The Council only agreed to apologise and make a payment at the time the report was issued and about to go to press. Whilst I welcome the Council's eventual agreement, it is regrettable that this was not achieved earlier in the process.

We have experienced several instances of significant delay to our enquiries during the year. In three cases, we had to resort to threatening to issue a witness summons to get the information we had asked for. This is highly unusual and wholly unacceptable. In the absence of requested information, it is not possible to progress investigations and reach decisions. Delay to investigations only aggravates any injustice to complainants and I ask that you take the necessary steps to ensure timely and complete responses are provided to my office in future.

New interactive data map

In recent years we have been taking steps to move away from a simplistic focus on complaint volumes and instead focus on the lessons learned and the wider improvements we can achieve through our recommendations to improve services for the many. Our ambition is outlined in our corporate strategy 2018-21 and commits us to publishing the outcomes of our investigations and the occasions our recommendations result in improvements for local services.

The result of this work is the launch of an interactive map of council performance on our website later this month. Your Council's Performance shows annual performance data for all councils in England, with links to our published decision statements, public interest reports, annual letters and information about service improvements that have been agreed by each council. It also highlights those instances where your authority offered a suitable remedy to resolve a complaint before the matter came to us, and your authority's compliance with the recommendations we have made to remedy complaints.

The intention of this new tool is to place a focus on your authority's compliance with investigations. It is a useful snapshot of the service improvement recommendations your authority has agreed to. It also highlights the wider outcomes of our investigations to the public, advocacy and advice organisations, and others who have a role in holding local councils to account.

I hope you, and colleagues, find the map a useful addition to the data we publish. We are the first UK public sector ombudsman scheme to provide compliance data in such a way and believe the launch of this innovative work will lead to improved scrutiny of councils as well as providing increased recognition to the improvements councils have agreed to make following our interventions.

Complaint handling training

We have a well-established and successful training programme supporting local authorities and independent care providers to help improve local complaint handling. In 2018-19 we delivered 71 courses, training more than 900 people, including our first 'open courses' in Effective Complaint Handling for local authorities. Due to their popularity we are running six more open courses for local authorities in 2019-20, in York, Manchester, Coventry and London. To find out more visit www.lgo.org.uk/training.

Finally, I am conscious of the resource pressures that many authorities are working within, and which are often the context for the problems that we investigate. In response to that situation we have published a significant piece of research this year looking at some of the common issues we are finding as a result of change and budget constraints. Called, Under Pressure, this report provides a contribution to the debate about how local government can navigate the unprecedented changes affecting the sector. I commend this to you, along with our revised guidance on Good Administrative Practice. I hope that together these are a timely reminder of the value of getting the basics right at a time of great change.

Yours sincerely,
