Janet Senior Chief Executive London Borough of Lewisham

Dear Ms Senior

Annual Review letter 2019

I write to you with our annual summary of statistics on the complaints made to the Local Government and Social Care Ombudsman about your authority for the year ending 31 March 2019. The enclosed tables present the number of complaints and enquiries received about your authority, the decisions we made, and your authority's compliance with recommendations during the period. I hope this information will prove helpful in assessing your authority's performance in handling complaints.

Complaint statistics

As ever, I would stress that the number of complaints, taken alone, is not necessarily a reliable indicator of an authority's performance. The volume of complaints should be considered alongside the uphold rate (how often we found fault when we investigated a complaint), and alongside statistics that indicate your authority's willingness to accept fault and put things right when they go wrong. We also provide a figure for the number of cases where your authority provided a satisfactory remedy before the complaint reached us, and new statistics about your authority's compliance with recommendations we have made; both of which offer a more comprehensive and insightful view of your authority's approach to complaint handling.

The new statistics on compliance are the result of a series of changes we have made to how we make and monitor our recommendations to remedy the fault we find. Our recommendations are specific and often include a time-frame for completion, allowing us to follow up with authorities and seek evidence that recommendations have been implemented. These changes mean we can provide these new statistics about your authority's compliance with our recommendations.

I want to emphasise the statistics in this letter reflect the data we hold and may not necessarily align with the data your authority holds. For example, our numbers include enquiries from people we signpost back to your authority, some of whom may never contact you.

In line with usual practice, we are publishing our annual data for all authorities on our website, alongside our annual review of local government complaints. For the first time, this includes data on authorities' compliance with our recommendations. This collated data further aids the scrutiny of local services and we encourage you to share learning from the report, which highlights key cases we have investigated during the year.

This year, we issued a public report about your Council's failure to properly assess and provide appropriate education, social care and transport support for a young person with special educational needs. We made several recommendations to remedy the individual injustice caused to the young person and their mother. However, we also had concerns there may be others similarly affected and asked the Council to take steps to address those concerns. Our legislative framework gives councils three months to formally respond to any recommendations made when a report is issued and to provide evidence of compliance. Unfortunately, it took your Council over nine months to provide sufficient evidence to finally enable us to confirm satisfaction with the actions taken. The delay largely related to recommendations made to ensure system improvements for all users. Whilst I appreciate it can take some time to arrange and implement such changes, we had to chase the Council repeatedly to provide the necessary evidence and considered the need to issue a further report because of the delay. I am pleased the Council has now taken the action we asked it to, but it was unfortunate this did not happen as efficiently as I would hope.

In addition to the report, I also have concerns about the Council's failure to provide evidence of compliance with remedies in several other cases. In one case, we had recommended a payment of £900 to remedy the injustice caused by it failing to properly support a vulnerable young man. We asked for this payment to be made within six weeks of the final decision. We again had to repeatedly chase the Council and it eventually took over three months for the payment to be made. While I appreciate the pressures local authorities are under, delays in implementing remedies will naturally add to complainants' injustice and prevents my office from conducting its work in an efficient manner. I would ask the Council to reflect on the way it implements our remedies, with a view to reducing any avoidable delay in the process.

A second case related to a safeguarding investigation about the care a complainant's father was receiving whilst resident in a care home. We identified failings in the way the safeguarding investigation was conducted and found this caused significant distress to the complainant. We asked the Council to apologise and make a payment within one month of the final decision. It took two months to comply with the recommendations and again caused additional distress to the complainant because of that delay.

Accepting fault and a willingness to put things right promptly is integral to any good complaints system. I would ask you to take the necessary steps to address the delay we have noted in implementing agreed remedies.

New interactive data map

In recent years we have been taking steps to move away from a simplistic focus on complaint volumes and instead focus on the lessons learned and the wider improvements we can achieve through our recommendations to improve services for the many. Our ambition is outlined in our corporate strategy 2018-21 and commits us to publishing the outcomes of our investigations and the occasions our recommendations result in improvements for local services.

The result of this work is the launch of an interactive map of council performance on our website later this month. Your Council's Performance shows annual performance data for all councils in England, with links to our published decision statements, public interest reports, annual letters and information about service improvements that have been agreed by each council. It also highlights those instances where your authority offered a suitable remedy to resolve a complaint before the matter came to us, and your authority's compliance with the recommendations we have made to remedy complaints.

The intention of this new tool is to place a focus on your authority's compliance with investigations. It is a useful snapshot of the service improvement recommendations your authority has agreed to. It also highlights the wider outcomes of our investigations to the public, advocacy and advice organisations, and others who have a role in holding local councils to account.

I hope you, and colleagues, find the map a useful addition to the data we publish. We are the first UK public sector ombudsman scheme to provide compliance data in such a way and believe the launch of this innovative work will lead to improved scrutiny of councils as well as providing increased recognition to the improvements councils have agreed to make following our interventions.

Complaint handling training

We have a well-established and successful training programme supporting local authorities and independent care providers to help improve local complaint handling. In 2018-19 we delivered 71 courses, training more than 900 people, including our first 'open courses' in Effective Complaint Handling for local authorities. Due to their popularity we are running six more open courses for local authorities in 2019-20, in York, Manchester, Coventry and London. To find out more visit www.lgo.org.uk/training.

Finally, I am conscious of the resource pressures that many authorities are working within, and which are often the context for the problems that we investigate. In response to that situation we have published a significant piece of research this year looking at some of the common issues we are finding as a result of change and budget constraints. Called, Under Pressure, this report provides a contribution to the debate about how local government can navigate the unprecedented changes affecting the sector. I commend this to you, along with our revised guidance on Good Administrative Practice. I hope that together these are a timely reminder of the value of getting the basics right at a time of great change.

Yours sincerely,

Michael King

Notes:

* This is the number of complaints where we have recorded a response (or failure to respond) to our recommendation for a remedy during the reporting year. This includes complaints that may have been decided in the preceding year but where the data for compliance falls within the current reporting year.

<sup>**</sup> The compliance rate is based on the number of complaints where the authority has provided evidence of their compliance with our recommendations to remedy a fault. This includes instances where an authority has accepted and implemented our recommendation but provided late evidence of that.
