

The Commission for Local Administration in England

The Local Government Ombudsman's
Annual Letter
Derbyshire County Council for the year ended
31 March 2007

The Local Government Ombudsman (LGO) investigates complaints by members of the public who consider that they have been caused injustice through administrative fault by local authorities and certain other bodies. The LGO also uses the findings from investigation work to help authorities provide better public services through initiatives such as special reports, training and annual letters.

Annual Letter 2006/07 - Introduction

This annual letter provides a summary of the complaints we have received about your authority. Where possible, we comment on the authority's performance and complaint-handling arrangements to assist with your service improvement.

I hope that the letter will be a useful addition to other information your authority holds on how people experience or perceive your services.

Two attachments form an integral part of this letter: statistical data covering a three year period and a note to help the interpretation of the statistics.

As you are a local Social Services authority I want to take this opportunity to draw your attention to an issue of significant public interest. In the last two years I have issued reports following complaints from people living in Blackpool, Liverpool and Sheffield about failings in home care services provided under contract.

In each case a vulnerable person was placed at significant risk as a result of carers failing to visit, calling late and failing to provide the specified care. Tragically, in one case the actions of a carer resulted in a death. Complaints had been made to all three Councils but no effective action had been taken. Although the services were provided under contract, it seems clear that similar problems could occur even if the carers are directly employed. I urge you to ensure that senior staff responsible for care services to adults are aware of the issues raised by these reports (which can be found on our web-site) and consider whether action needs to be taken by your Council. The 2006 report of the Commission for Social Care Inspection 'Time to Care? An Overview of Home Care Services for Older People in England' provides very useful contextual information

Complaints received

We received 48 complaints about your Council in 2006/07, a small increase of three on the previous year. Of these the biggest category of complaint was transport and highways (sixteen complaints), followed by education (twelve). Transport and highways complaints doubled from the previous year. Education complaints increased slightly, although the bulk of these were complaints about admissions to one secondary school from a specific primary school. There were reductions in children and family services and planning and building control complaints.

Decisions on complaints

Reports and local settlements

A 'local settlement' is a complaint that is resolved by the Council taking, or agreeing to take, action which we consider is a satisfactory response to the complaint so that the investigation can be discontinued. In 2006/07 27.7% of complaints dealt with by the three Local Government Ombudsmen (excluding premature and those outside jurisdiction) were resolved by local settlement. When we complete an investigation we must issue a report.

We did not issue any reports about your Council during 2006/07. Nine complaints led to local settlements, compared to four the previous year. These local settlements resulted in payments totalling £2050, repairs to streetlighting and work to improve record keeping and the information available to professionals visiting people receiving home care visits.

Your Council's complaints procedure and handling of complaints

The Council averaged 22.3 days to respond to eighteen initial enquiries, well within the target of 28 days and a reduction on the average of 28.5 days in 2005/06. This speed of response enables the Ombudsman to provide a quality service to complainants. The responses we receive continue to be of a good quality. My investigators noted that complaints which had been through the statutory Social Services Complaints Procedure had been dealt with quickly and effectively.

We decided 46 complaints during 2006/07. Of these, fourteen (30.4%) were premature, that is the Council had not had a reasonable opportunity to respond to them. Of the complaints decided, three (6.3%) were premature complaints resubmitted to my office because the complainant was dissatisfied with the Council's response, compared to the national average of 10%. Of these three complaints, one resulted in a local settlement. These figures suggest that the Council's complaints procedure is working well for local people.

Training in complaint handling

Part of our role is to provide advice and guidance about good administrative practice. We offer training courses for all levels of local authority staff in complaints handling and investigation. The feedback from councils that have taken up the training is very positive.

The range of courses is expanding in response to demand. In addition to the generic Good Complaint Handling (identifying and processing complaints) and Effective Complaint Handling (investigation and resolution), we now offer these courses specifically for social services staff and have also successfully piloted a course on reviewing complaints for social services review panel members. We can run open courses for groups of staff from different smaller authorities and also customise courses to meet your Council's specific requirements.

All courses are presented by an experienced investigator so participants benefit from their knowledge and expertise of complaint handling.

I have enclosed some information on the full range of courses available together with contact details for enquiries and any further bookings.

LGO developments

You may be interested in the development of our initiative to improve the first contact that people have with us. A new Access and Advice Service will provide a gateway to our services for all complainants and enquirers. It will encourage telephone contact but will also deal with email, text and letter correspondence. We will let you have further details about how it will operate and the expected timescales and we will discuss with you the implications for your Council.

I hope you have received our latest special report about telecommunication masts. It draws on our experience of dealing with complaints about planning applications for masts which can be highly controversial. We recommend simple measures that councils can adopt to minimise the chances of maladministration occurring.

In July we will be publishing a special report about the difficulties that can be encountered with complaints when local authorities deliver services or discharge their functions through partnerships. Local partnerships and citizen redress provides advice and guidance on how these problems can be overcome by good governance arrangements that include an effective complaints protocol.

Conclusions and general observations

I welcome this opportunity to comment on our experience of complaints about the Council over the past year. I hope that you find the information and assessment provided useful when seeking improvements to your Council's services.
