

The Local Government Ombudsman's
Annual Letter

Tameside Metropolitan Borough Council

for the year ended
31 March 2008

The Local Government Ombudsman (LGO) provides a free, independent and impartial service. We consider complaints about the administrative actions of councils and some other authorities. We cannot question what a council has done simply because someone does not agree with it. If we find something has gone wrong, such as poor service, service failure, delay or bad advice, and that a person has suffered as a result, the Ombudsmen aim to get it put right by recommending a suitable remedy. The LGO also uses the findings from investigation work to help authorities provide better public services through initiatives such as special reports, training and annual letters.

Annual Letter 2007/08 - Introduction

This annual letter provides a summary of the complaints received about Tameside Metropolitan Borough Council and comments on the authority's performance and complaint-handling arrangements.

I hope that the letter will assist you in improving services by providing a useful perspective on how some people who are dissatisfied experience or perceive your services.

Two attachments form an integral part of this letter: statistical data covering a three year period and a note to help the interpretation of the statistics.

Complaints received

Volume

Last year there were 55 complaints against the Council, a slight rise from the 47 complaints received during the previous year (2006/7).

Character

As in the previous years the largest single category of complaint was planning and building control, though last year's total of 15 complaints was slightly lower than the 16 complaints during the previous year and the 19 such complaints during the year before that (2005/6). The second largest identifiable category of complaint was about education where 10 complaints were received last year in contrast with six in the previous year and four during the year before that. There were six complaints about transport and highways, the same number as in 2005/6.

Liaison with the Local Government Ombudsman

The Council has a fine record of responding swiftly to the first enquiries made upon complaints, and last year was no exception. On average responses were received within 24.3 calendar days on the 24 complaints where enquiries were made - well within the 28 days in which we ask councils to respond.

Decisions on complaints

Last year decisions were made upon 55 complaints. A third of these (18) were found to be premature complaints where the Council had not yet had a proper chance to deal with the complaint itself. Eight lay outside my jurisdiction, and another 23 were closed either because no maladministration had been found (18) or because I exercised my discretion not to pursue these (5).

Reports and local settlements

We will often discontinue enquires into a complaint when a council takes or agrees to take action that we consider to be a satisfactory response – we call these local settlements. In 2007/08 the Local Government Ombudsmen determined 27% [of complaints by local settlement (excluding 'premature' complaints and those outside our jurisdiction)].

There were six complaints which were locally settled last year. In one case a payment of £1360 was readily offered by the Council when it failed repeatedly a child with special educational needs. In another case the Council paid £100 in recognition of its failure to collect waste properly.

If an investigation is completed I issue a public report. I did not issue any reports about the Council last year.

Training in complaint handling

Part of our role is to provide advice and guidance about good administrative practice. We offer training courses for all levels of local authority staff in complaints handling and investigation. A detailed evaluation of the training provided to councils over the past three years shows very high levels of satisfaction.

The range of courses is expanding in response to demand. In addition to Good Complaint Handling (identifying and processing complaints) and Effective Complaint Handling (investigation and resolution) we now offer these courses specifically for social services staff and a course on reviewing complaints for social care review panel members. We will customise courses to meet your Council's specific requirements and provide courses for groups of staff from different smaller authorities.

Participants benefit from the complaint-handling knowledge and expertise of the experienced investigators who present the courses.

I enclose information on the full range of courses available together with contact details for enquiries and any further bookings.

LGO developments

We launched the LGO Advice Team in April, providing a first contact service for all enquirers and new complainants. Demand for the service has been high. Our team of advisers, trained to provide comprehensive information and advice, has dealt with many thousands of calls since the service started.

The team handles complaints submitted by telephone, email or text, as well as in writing. This new power to accept complaints other than in writing was one of the provisions of the Local Government and Public Involvement in Health Act, which also came into force in April. Our experience of implementing other provisions in the Act, such as complaints about service failure and apparent maladministration, is being kept under review and will be subject to further discussion. Any feedback from your Council would be welcome.

Last year we published two special reports providing advice and guidance on 'applications for prior approval of telecommunications masts' and 'citizen redress in local partnerships'. Feedback on special reports is always welcome. I would particularly appreciate information on complaints protocols in the governance arrangements of partnerships with which your Council is involved.

Conclusions and general observations

I welcome this opportunity to comment on our experience of complaints about the Council over the past year. I hope that you find the information and assessment provided useful when seeking improvements to your Council's services.
