

Local Government & Social Care OMBUDSMAN

21 July 2021

Mr May
Chief Executive
Nottinghamshire County Council

Dear Mr May

Annual Review letter 2021

I write to you with our annual summary of statistics on the decisions made by the Local Government and Social Care Ombudsman about your authority for the year ending 31 March 2021. At the end of a challenging year, we maintain that good public administration is more important than ever and I hope this feedback provides you with both the opportunity to reflect on your Council's performance and plan for the future.

You will be aware that, at the end of March 2020 we took the unprecedented step of temporarily stopping our casework, in the wider public interest, to allow authorities to concentrate efforts on vital frontline services during the first wave of the Covid-19 outbreak. We restarted casework in late June 2020, after a three month pause.

We listened to your feedback and decided it was unnecessary to pause our casework again during further waves of the pandemic. Instead, we have encouraged authorities to talk to us on an individual basis about difficulties responding to any stage of an investigation, including implementing our recommendations. We continue this approach and urge you to maintain clear communication with us.

Complaint statistics

This year, we continue to focus on the outcomes of complaints and what can be learned from them. We want to provide you with the most insightful information we can and have focused statistics on three key areas:

Complaints upheld - We uphold complaints when we find some form of fault in an authority's actions, including where the authority accepted fault before we investigated.

Compliance with recommendations - We recommend ways for authorities to put things right when faults have caused injustice and monitor their compliance with our recommendations. Failure to comply is rare and a compliance rate below 100% is a cause for concern.

Satisfactory remedy provided by the authority - In these cases, the authority upheld the complaint and we agreed with how it offered to put things right. We encourage the early resolution of complaints and credit authorities that accept fault and find appropriate ways to put things right.

Finally, we compare the three key annual statistics for your authority with similar types of authorities to work out an average level of performance. We do this for County Councils, District Councils, Metropolitan Boroughs, Unitary Councils, and London Boroughs.

Your annual data will be uploaded to our interactive map, Your council's performance, along with a copy of this letter on 28 July 2021. This useful tool places all our data and information about councils in one place. You can find the decisions we have made about your Council, public reports we have issued, and the service improvements your Council has agreed to make as a result of our investigations, as well as previous annual review letters.

I would encourage you to share the resource with colleagues and elected members; the information can provide valuable insights into service areas, early warning signs of problems and is a key source of information for governance, audit, risk and scrutiny functions.

As you would expect, data has been impacted by the pause to casework in the first quarter of the year. This should be considered when making comparisons with previous year's data.

During the year, we issued a public report about your Council's failure to promptly assess the needs of a man placed in a care home by his family due to carer stress. We found the Council delayed completing a care and support assessment, delayed assessing his mental capacity, and delayed making a best interests decision about where he should live. The Council also failed to take account of the man's Human Rights, specifically his right to enjoy his existing home peacefully.

The Council's delay meant the man remained in the care home for longer than necessary, and incurred a debt of £15,000, which he did not have the mental capacity to agree to. At a time of carer stress, where the man's wife had wanted time to concentrate on her terminally ill son, she needed the support of the Council but did not get it. The care home pursued her for the debt including threatening bailiff action, which she found very distressing.

It is to the Council's credit that it quickly accepted fault and our findings in this case, but disappointing that it did not do so during its own complaint investigation. The Council was keen to help resolve the case and took steps to improve its Mental Capacity Act documentation and guidance during our investigation. The Council took action following our draft report rather than awaiting the final, so that it could help the family sooner. The Council contacted the care provider to take responsibility for the outstanding care fees, so it would stop pursuing the family, apologised to the family, and made payments to acknowledge their distress, time and trouble. Finally, the Council showed it is committed to learning from the complaint by producing and carrying out an action plan for improvement that included case reviews, and briefings, training, and improved resources for staff.

Supporting complaint and service improvement

I am increasingly concerned about the evidence I see of the erosion of effective complaint functions in local authorities. While no doubt the result of considerable and prolonged budget and demand pressures, the Covid-19 pandemic appears to have amplified the problems and my concerns. With much greater frequency, we find poor local complaint handling practices when investigating substantive service issues and see evidence of reductions in the overall capacity, status and visibility of local redress systems.

With this context in mind, we are developing a new programme of work that will utilise complaints to drive improvements in both local complaint systems and services. We want to use the rich evidence of our casework to better identify authorities that need support to improve their complaint handling and target specific support to them. We are at the start of this ambitious work and there will be opportunities for local authorities to shape it over the coming months and years.

An already established tool we have for supporting improvements in local complaint handling is our successful training programme. During the year, we successfully adapted our face-to-face courses for online delivery. We provided 79 online workshops during the year, reaching more than 1,100 people. Complaints upheld 54% of complaints we investigated were upheld.

This compares to an average of 71% in similar authorities.

upheld decisions

Statistics are based on a total of 28 detailed investigations for the period between 1 April 2020 to 31 March 2021

Compliance with Ombudsman recommendations

In 100% of cases we were satisfied the authority had successfully implemented our recommendations.

This compares to an average of 100% in similar authorities.

Statistics are based on a total of 14 compliance outcomes for the period between 1 April 2020 to 31 March 2021

- Failure to comply with our recommendations is rare. An authority with a compliance rate below 100% should scrutinise those complaints where it failed to comply and identify any learning.

Satisfactory remedy provided by the authority

In 0% of upheld cases we found the authority had provided a satisfactory remedy before the complaint reached the Ombudsman.

This compares to an average of 8% in similar authorities.

satisfactory remedy decisions

Statistics are based on a total of 28 detailed investigations for the period between 1 April 2020 to 31 March 2021

NOTE: To allow authorities to respond to the Covid-19 pandemic, we did not accept new complaints and stopped investigating existing cases between March and June 2020. This reduced the number of complaints we received and decided in the 20-21 year. Please consider this when comparing data from previous years.
