Sandwell Metropolitan Borough Council

Dear Mr Lal

Annual Review letter 2023-24

I write to you with your annual summary of complaint statistics from the Local Government and Social Care Ombudsman for the year ending 31 March 2024. The information offers valuable insight about your organisation's approach to complaints, and I know you will consider it as part of your corporate governance processes. As such, I have sought to share this letter with the Leader of your Council and Chair of the appropriate Scrutiny Committee, to ensure effective ownership and oversight of complaint outcomes, which offer valuable opportunities to learn and improve. In addition, this year, we have encouraged Monitoring Officers to register to receive the letter directly, supporting their role to report the decisions we uphold to their council.

For most of the reporting year, Paul Najsarek steered the organisation during his tenure as interim Ombudsman, and I was delighted to take up the role of Ombudsman in February 2024. I look forward to working with you and colleagues across the local government sector to ensure we continue to harness the value of individual complaints and drive and promote systemic change and improvement across the local government landscape.

While I know this ambition will align with your own, I am aware of the difficult financial circumstances and service demands that make continuous improvement a challenging focus for the sector. However, we will continue to hold organisations to account through our investigations and recommend proportionate actions to remedy injustice. Despite the challenges, I have great confidence that you recognise the valuable contribution and insight complaints, and their swift resolution, offer to improve services for the public.

Complaint statistics

Our statistics focus on three key areas that help to assess your organisation's commitment to putting things right when they go wrong:

Complaints upheld - We uphold complaints when we find fault in an organisation's actions, including where the organisation accepted fault before we investigated. We include the total number of investigations completed to provide important context for the statistic. This year, we also provide the number of upheld complaints per 100,000 population.

Compliance with recommendations - We recommend ways for organisations to put things right when faults have caused injustice and monitor their compliance with our recommendations. Failure to comply is rare and a compliance rate below 100% is a cause for concern.

Satisfactory remedy provided by the authority - In these cases, the organisation upheld the complaint and we agreed with how it offered to put things right. We encourage the early resolution of complaints and give credit to organisations that accept fault and find appropriate ways to put things right.

Finally, we compare the three key annual statistics for your organisation with similar authorities to provide an average marker of performance. We do this for County Councils, District Councils, Metropolitan Boroughs, Unitary Councils, and London Boroughs.

Your annual data, and a copy of this letter, will be uploaded to our interactive map, Your council's performance, on 24 July 2024. This useful tool places all our data and information about councils in one place. You can find the detail of the decisions we have made about your Council, read the public reports we have issued, and view the service improvements your Council has agreed to make as a result of our investigations, as well as previous annual review letters.

Your organisation's performance

During the year, we issued a public report about your Council's failure to offer a suitable nursing home. Our investigation found the Council failed to take into consideration and incorporate the complainant's cultural needs into their care plan. We also criticised the Council for the lack of commissioned resources to meet the complainant's, and others', cultural needs. This meant the complainant did not always get the care she needed, and the family were often left having to step in to provide this care.

To remedy the injustice caused to the complainant, we asked the Council to make a payment of £1,000 to acknowledge the distress caused to her and an additional £500 to the representative in recognition of her own distress. We also asked the Council to reimburse the family 20% of the contributed care fees.

To help reduce the risk of recurrence the Council agreed to issue written reminders to care providers to ensure they are aware of relevant guidance. The Council has agreed to develop a strategy detailing how it intends to meet the cultural needs of people living in its area. The Council is currently in the process of implementing these recommendations and we are monitoring progress.

Beyond this case, we have experienced issues with the Council's responses to our investigation enquiries during the year. While we have received some very timely responses, particularly on Housing cases, responses in several Adult Social Care complaints were significantly delayed. In two cases, we were forced to remind the Council of our powers to issue a witness summons before we received the information we required.

In addition, some of the responses have been poor quality, with requested information not provided. In one case, information that should have been redacted had been highlighted instead and so was clearly visible. In a further case, the Council twice refused to request information from a care provider insisting we should ask for this ourselves despite the fact the care had been commissioned by the Council.

I encourage you to ensure that your Council provides us with prompt and complete responses to our enquiries in the year ahead. Should you require any support, please do contact us.

Supporting complaint and service improvement

In February, following a period of consultation, we launched the Complaint Handling Code for councils, setting out a clear process for responding to complaints effectively and fairly. It is aligned with the Code issued to housing authorities and landlords by the Housing Ombudsman Service and we encourage you to adopt the Code without undue delay. Twenty councils have volunteered to take part in an implementation pilot over the next two years that will develop further guidance and best practice.

The Code is issued to councils under our powers to provide guidance about good administrative practice. We expect councils to carefully consider the Code when developing policies and procedures and will begin considering it as part of our processes from April 2026 at the earliest.

The Code is considered good practice for all organisations we investigate (except where there are statutory complaint handling processes in place), and we may decide to issue it as guidance to other organisations in future.

Our successful complaint handling training programme continues to develop with new modules in Adult Social Care and Children's Services complaint handling available soon. All our courses include practical interactive workshops that help participants develop their complaint handling skills. We delivered 126 online workshops during the year, reaching more than 1,700 people. To find out more visit www.lgo.org.uk/training or get in touch at training@lgo.org.uk.

According to our records we have not delivered complaint handling training to your Council in the last three years. Our courses are highly rated by delegates who consistently report increased confidence in handling complaints. As a result, we often see improved performance in a council's complaint handling, and I encourage you to explore our training offer further.

Returning to the theme of continuous improvement, we recognise the importance of reflecting on our own performance. With that in mind I encourage you to share your view of our organisation via this survey: <https://www.smartsurvey.co.uk/s/ombudsman/>. Your responses will help us to assess our impact and improve our offer to you. We want to gather a range of views and welcome multiple responses from organisations, so please do share the link with relevant colleagues.

Yours sincerely,

Amerdeep Somal
